Lipoedema 2018

Lipoedema is a chronic, incurable condition that can severely affect physical and psychological wellbeing and quality of life.

To date, clinical research on the topic has been extremely limited, and the condition is frequently misdiagnosed.

More attention on the issue has resulted from the publication of the first clinical guidelines on the management of lipoedema in March 2017, as well as a new e-learning resource, published by the RCGP.

This CPD certified conference aims to bring together physicians, GPs, surgeons and specialist nurses to discuss the current issues and practical management of this complex condition.
